How did you go about designing th logo for your website. Should a logo be integral to a website or separated out. There are so many on the web is it worth employing an agency

Hi. A logo image design and business website must work well with each other aesthetically. They both appear on your site so they must have a united presentation. Some businesses has an existing logo before they get a good website, so the theme, colors and lines of the logo design becomes the main influence of the web design.

Most companies who starts with a website and logo design at its inception (like online businesses) probably had them made at the same time from an online design company.

Yes,;) there are online logo companies or web design companies who offer both services in one package deal. This is a good idea since the logo design man or team who made yours are the best people that can preserve the presence and style of your logo in your website design.

Most of the time it is also practical; the cost of getting both done by one company is often less that the cost of separate jobs by separate companies.

Hope I helped! :laugh:

btw, Check out Logo Design Guru Im sure they can help a lot.

Hi Wyatt!

I've had great success working with The NetMen Corp on various design projects. They've done my logo design, a few brochures and a web template. Very efficient, great quality and creativity, and inexpensive. Their website is www.thenetmencorp.com. Hope that helps!

Please, let me know your comments.

Regards,
Paula.
